ABSTRACT

[0033] Briefly, a method and apparatus that may enable and/or disable of a packet protection mechanism based on a value of an adaptable threshold. The value of the adaptable threshold may be determined from a collision rate of packets transmitted over a wireless local area network and from detection of hidden nodes.